6.2.3. Parenthesized forms¶. A parenthesized form is an optional expression list enclosed in parentheses: `parenth_form ::= "(" [starred_expression] ")"`. A parenthesized expression list yields whatever that expression list yields: if the list contains at least one comma, it yields a tuple; otherwise, it yields the single expression that makes up the expression list.

Log Base 10. Log base 10, also known as the common logarithm or decadic logarithm, is the logarithm to the base 10. The common logarithm of x is the power to which the number 10 must be raised to obtain the value x . For example, the common logarithm of 10 is 1, the common logarithm of 100 is 2 and the common logarithm of 1000 is 3.

Abstract. This is a proposal for creating a way to assign to variables within an expression using the notation `NAME := expr.` As part of this change, there is also an update to dictionary comprehension evaluation order to ensure key expressions are executed before value expressions (allowing the key to be bound to a name and then re-used as part of calculating the corresponding value).
