This study developed a generalized droop-based formulation for the active and reactive power controls in hybrid AC-DC MGs. To this end, efficient active and reactive power control indices were extracted. The proposed primary control strategy concentrated on IC and extended the founded approach for all variants of line impedance in ac subgrid.

Therefore, this paper takes these CNN advantages and proposes a generalized deep CNN approach to address the difficulty of mapping croplands over very large areas using VHSR images. Specifically, the CNN is based on the pyramid scene parsing network (PSPNet) (Zhao et al., 2017), an end-to-end pixel wise deep CNN architecture for scene parsing.
