Question: "Who is the elect lady in 2 John?" Answer: John begins his second epistle with these words: "The elder to the elect lady and her children, whom I love in truth" (2 John 1:1, ESV). The apostle identifies himself as "the elder," a title that reflects both his age at the time of the writing and his authority in the early church.

The book of 2 John is addressed to the "elect lady and her children." Who is this "lady"? There is a difference of opinion on this point. Some assume that this is a reference to a church congregation and its spiritual children, while others contend that it is a particular lady who was a member of the Church of God.
