Breakpoint: Why the Web will Implode, Search will be ...

It is the quality of a network that is important for survival, not the size, and all networks—the human brain, Facebook, Google, even the internet itself—eventually reach a breakpoint and collapse. That’s the bad news. The good news is that reaching a breakpoint can be a step forward, allowing a network to substitute quality for quantity.

The breakpoint is where you have grown too much and there is only one result which is decline. This decline is not a bad thing despite what people and society think. Instead you have to rethink certain measures to figure out what the best scenario will be to maintain an functioning and thriving network.
