The Style Manual used by the New York State Law Reporting ... English is a West Germanic language first spoken in early medieval England, which has become the leading language of international discourse in the 21st century. It is named after the Angles, one of the ancient Germanic peoples that migrated to the area of Great Britain that later took their name, England. Both names derive from Anglia, a peninsula on the Baltic Sea.

This chapter addresses family-centered care as central to the philosophy of palliative care. It describes illness as being incorporated into every aspect of family life. Family and illness are shown to be a biopsychosocial model—the fit between family strengths and vulnerabilities in relation to the psychosocial demands over time of the illness. The influences of geographic and cultural ...
