Uncertain Course

The thesis of Chinese Naval Shipbuilding: An Ambitious and Uncertain Course is that the People's Republic of China, since 2000, has become the world leader in commercial shipping and that its navy is emerging as a rival to the dominance of the United States Navy (USN) in Asian waters. China's fast rise in maritime power is yet another aspect of the country's significance in world affairs.

China is now the world's largest commercial shipbuilder in terms of gross tons constructed per year, exceeding both South Korea and Japan. It is the second largest naval shipbuilder, with only the US exceeding it. The book also provides a very good look into the Chinese shipbuilding and associated governmental organization and structure. The book examines in some detail the 20 largest commercial shipbuilding yards. Not surprisingly, most are "state owned enterprises" (SOEs).
