Criminological Theory Past To Present

Positivist theory influenced Lombroso by making him believe you could determine who is a criminal based on their appearance, and that it can be proven with past evidence of criminals. I see absolutely no validity in this approach, solely due to the fact that there are so many people in this world, even back in the time of the enlightenment, that ...

An integrated theory has an explanatory perspective that merges (or attempts to merge) concepts drawn from different sources. Dr. Presley and Dr. Meyer have different scientific backgrounds (sociology and genetic biology) and have developed a theory that uses concepts from both fields. This is most likely an integrated theory of criminal behavior.
