spi-dump. spi-dump is a commandline utility for dumping SPI EEPROMs, using an Arduino as a bridge between a console and SPI bus. There are quite a few quick tutorials and code snippets floating around demonstrating how to use an Arduino to interface with SPI EEPROMs, but all that I've come across implement the majority of the logic on the Arduino side.

@Winter17, Will this work.. If you have two bios chips switch to the good working one and update the ME to one version greater (avoiding same issue as before), and then run FPTW64 -d dump.bin. Use Uefitool to re-encapsulate it, rename it according to the flashback naming scheme, switch to faulty bios chip and reflash?
