It is international above all because, like revolution, counterrevolution is both product and further stimulant of a generalised crisis of the state system that engulfs a range of countries and that forms the focus for international politics in a particular epoch.

To do this we must decolonize the dynamics of revolution and counterrevolution in Rojava from naive and insidious analysis and narratives that predominate the Leftist approach to this event. We must do this to avoid Rojava's mistakes in future struggles and to warm our desire for revolution with concrete memories from Rojava.
