Europe's lost world : the rediscovery of Doggerland (Book ...

Some 23,000 km² of this 'lost world' (an area equivalent to that of Wales) have now been revealed. This book tells the exciting story of how this lost country was rediscovered by archaeology and what the results of new work are telling us about what happened to man during the last great phase of global warming, when a massive area of Europe was lost as a consequence of climate change.

This is an excellent book and challenges the belief that when the bed of the North Sea was dry land, that it was more than a bridge between mainland Europe and the adjoining British section.

Doggerland, Europe's lost world - Archaeology

WELCOME TO THE LOST FRONTIERS PROJECT WEB SITE.

Global warming at the end of the last Ice Age led to the inundation of vast landscapes that had once been home to thousands of people. These lost lands hold a unique and largely unexplored record of settlement and colonisation linked to climate change over millennia.
