The B-series, the B20B variant in particular, is not to be confused with the earlier Honda B20A engine introduced in 1985 and primarily available in the Prelude and Accord-derived vehicles from 1985-1991. While sharing some design elements and both being multivalve Honda four-cylinders, the B-series and B20A differ substantially in architecture, enough to be considered distinct engine families.

Honda B20A engine - Wikipedia

The B20B Engine is part of Honda's B-series of DOHC / SOHC four cylinder automotive engines. Honda introduced the first B-series engine in 1989 as a performance engine with single and dual cams. All Japanese B series engines follow a four code series. The B designates that it is part of the B series. This is followed by a two digit number which details engine displacement. Lastly, there is a second letter for the model.
