Inferno: A New Translation: Dante Alighieri, Henrik ...

The only good Hell to be in right now is poet Mary Jo Bang's innovative, new translation of Dante's Inferno, illustrated with drawings by Henrik Drescher. Bang's thrillingly contemporary translation of the first part (the juiciest part) of Alighieri's 14th-century poem The Divine Comedy is indeed epic. . . .

Inferno: A New Translation | IndieBound.org

A superb new, very readable verse translation of the classic text that has been called " a choice contender for both college and general reading audiences " by the premier Dante scholar, Richard Lansing, professor emeritus at Brandeis University.

SparkNotes: Inferno

Inferno: A New Translation When Dante originally wrote the Inferno, he did so in the vernacular, not in the literary Latin. This instinct is taken to new levels in Bang's translation—where her idiomatic, contemporary diction includes allusions to popular television shows, poets, musicians, philosophers, and other familiar cultural references.
