Jean Baudrillard is the leading international theorist of postmodernism. Seduction is Jean Baudrillard's most provocative book. Here, under the sign of seduction all modern theory is put into question. Seduction speaks of the sudden reversibility in the order of things where discourse is absorbed into its own signs without a trace of meaning.

The Gulf War Did Not Take Place - Wikipedia

Simulacra and Simulation (French: Simulacres et Simulation) is a 1981 philosophical treatise by Jean Baudrillard, in which the author seeks to examine the relationships between reality, symbols, and society, in particular the significations and symbolism of culture and media involved in constructing an understanding of shared existence.

Introduction - Home - Springer

Connections are then made between Arendt's account of this rise and Jean Baudrillard's account of the postmodern proliferation of signs and the transformation of the sign into a commodity. This radical "semiurgy" accelerates into a self-referential series of signs which entails the loss of reality — it contributes to the disappearance ...

A postmodern analyst who is not always comfortable with this categorisation, Baudrillard and his project merits as much, if not more serious consideration, as the work of far more conventional thinkers like Francis Fukuyama, Jürgen Habermas, John Rawls or Jean-François Lyotard.

The Fate of Hyperreality: Jean Baudrillard and the ...

Drawing on Jean Baudrillard's work, it reveals the semiotic aspects of the culture industry and describes the industry in the age of simulation and hyperreality. The book argues that the culture industry has now entered the micro level of our everyday life through shopping centers, the image of profusion and more.

Simulacra and Simulation - Wikipedia

The postmodern semiotic concept of "hyperreality" was contentiously coined by French sociologist Jean Baudrillard in Simulacra and Simulation. Baudrillard defined "hyperreality" as "the generation by models of a real without origin or reality"; hyperreality is a representation, a sign, without an original referent.

Baudrillard is critical of the ever-improving operational efficiency of technological systems such that the human becomes irrelevant to the process. In digital reduction we witness the supersession, in Baudrillard's terms, of the symbolic, alterity and singularity of the human by the semiotic, simulation and technological.
