Mooncop by Tom Gauld - Books-A-Million

As our hero, the Mooncop, makes his daily rounds, his beat grows ever smaller, the population dwindles. A young girl runs away, a dog breaks off his leash, an automaton wanders off from the Museum of the Moon. Each day that the Mooncop goes to work, life gets a little quieter and a little lonelier.

Mooncop | "At once hilarious and achingly melancholy, Mooncop] reads like a requiem for the future we were promised decades ago that never arrived. A quietly essential read for anyone who grew up reading sci-fi."--Wired"Living on the moon.

Mooncop | Drawn & Quarterly

The language and the drawings are spare, the lunar landscape is understandably spare, and the story packs a huge wallop. Basically, a man is in charge of a one-person police outpost on the moon at a time when the other moon settlers are giving up and going home.

Mooncop

Mooncop focuses on a police officer who lives on the moon, who performs the same tasks day in, day out, which isn't a lot really. There are no crimes on the moon but there are lunar donuts which he particularly enjoys. Mooncop is an existential story which is both funny and pretty sad at times, and will definitely be re-read.

Mooncop is equal parts funny and melancholy. capturing essential truths about humanity and making this a story of the past, present, and future, all in one.

MOON CO-OP Natural Foods Market

Gauld depicts the lunar colony of Mooncop with measures of care and irony. From the start, his pages initiate a kind of game-playing with readers as much as they immerse readers in the world of the story. Gauld's cross-hatching of moon rocks, for instance, is so methodical that it lends depth to the setting while also reinforcing its artifice.

Mooncop is a slight tale, but Gauld's deceptively simple panels and sparse, understated dialogue speak poetically about the deadening monotony of jobs and the pointlessness of existence. This is...

Mooncop (Volume) - Comic Vine

Tom Gauld (born 1976) is a Scottish cartoonist and illustrator. His style reflects his self-professed fondness of "deadpan comedy, flat dialogue, things happening offstage and impressive characters". Others note that his work "combines pathos with the farcical" and exhibits "a casual reduction of visual keys into a more rudimentary drawing style"
