Notes from Underground Literature Essay Samples

Fyodor Dostoevsky's novel, NOTES FROM THE UNDERGROUND, has held many labels, such as being a case history of neurosis or a specimen of modern tragedy. The most popular label it has obtained however is being the author's defense of individualism. The novel is written as a performance, part triad, part memoir, by a nameless personage...

In Dostoevsky's Notes from Underground, the Underground Man proposes a radically different conception of free action from that of Kant. While Kant thinks that an agent is not acting freely unless he acts for some reason, the Underground Man seems to take the opposite stance: the only way to be truly autonomous is to reject this notion of freedom, and to affirm one's right to act for no reason.

Notes From Underground Norton Critical Editions

I would like to step back from the text, set aside the problem of the author's intention,¹ and read the text anew as fiction, to ask, despite the Underground Man's frequent jibes at Kant's theory of "the sublime and the beautiful" in Dostoevsky's Notes from Underground (14),² is there a more profound sense in which Dostoevsky affirms Kant's theory?

Critical Responses to Notes from the Underground In general, many critics have taken Notes as an ideological document rather than as a novel. Thus, criticism has been radically divided: on one hand, warm praise for the novel from admirers of Dostoevsky's views on personality and ideology, and on the other, denunciation from the liberal, optimistic, common-sensical and rationalist camp.
