Ode: To Autumn SEASON of mists and mellow fruitfulness, Close bosom-friend of the maturing sun; Conspiring with him how to load and bless With fruit the vines that round the thatch-eaves run; To bend with apples the moss'd cottage trees, And fill all fruit with ripeness to the core; To swell the gourd, and plump the hazel shells

Analysis of the Poem "Ode to Autumn" - BestCustomPapers.com
Where "Ode on Melancholy" presents itself as a strenuous heroic quest, "To Autumn" is concerned with the much quieter activity of daily observation and appreciation. In this quietude, the gathered themes of the preceding odes find their fullest and most beautiful expression.

Ode to Autumn: Imagery, symbolism and themes » John Keats ...
Death and loss are prevalent in John Keats' To Autumn and Ode on Melancholy, and comparisons can be made between the two concerning the imagery, metaphoric language and philosophical ideas put forward by Keats in his exploration of these two themes. It is arguable also that one poem backs up the other, and they are both stepping-stones in the development of Keats' thoughts on death and loss.

Ode To Autumn Poem by John Keats - Poem Hunter
To Autumn Summary 'To Autumn' is one of Keats' most sensual, image-laden poems. It is a sumptuous description of the season of autumn in a three-stanza structure, each of eleven lines, and of an ABAB rhyme scheme. The first stanza deals primarily with the atmosphere of autumn, while the second addresses autumn in the style of a female goddess, with a trace of the homemaker about her, and ...
