Kevin Macdonald's documentary "One Day in September" retells these events in the style of a thriller, which is a little unsettling. It's one thing to see a fictional re-creation of facts, as in the re-creation of the Cuban missile crisis in "Thirteen Days," and another to see facts tarted up like fiction.

One Day in September is one of the worst pieces of non-fiction I have ever read. It has all the characteristics of something written in haste in the immediate aftermath of the events in September 1972 but was first published in 2000 and updated in 2006. Not only is it poorly written but poorly edited. Just a few examples.
