The "Precision Shooting Reloading Guide", edited by Dave Brennan, is much the best of any advance loading book I've ever seen. Well written, straight to the point info organized in eight sections, each written by a recognised expert in that area. It's half the size of Glen's book but has much more helpful info and it's less costly too. Sinclair ...

The Bushnell XRS II is a purpose-built riflescope designed for long-range precision rifle shooting. Over the course of the last five months, I found it to be an excellent tool for that job. My first look through an XRS II came while attending the 2018 SHOT Show. It left a good first impression and had

I have several fairly good advanced books. The best I've found, by a wide margin, is "Precision Shooting Reloading Guide", Dave Brennan, and its price is modest. The biggest disappointment was Glen Zediker's "Handloading for Competition", far too much chatty chaff for the few kernels of really useful info. I do want a copy of Sinclair's book.

Precision reloading Techniques - Benchrest
Concur with the comments above about accuracy versus bulk. My comments will focus more on the match grade ammunition. First, invest in a good quality reloading guide (example: Precision Shooting Reloading Guide by Dave Brennan, 1998) AND a few industry-brand name reloading data manuals (examples: Sierra, Hornady and Lyman).
