Place the paper you'd like to cut on your cutting surface. I've taken metallic envelopes apart to use for quilling strips in this way. Align the paper edge with the first marking, then tape the markings in place above and below - ensure they are parallel or else your cutting will be off. Align your ruler to the markings and start cutting away.

A quilling crimper allows you to crimp the strips of paper to add a unique texture to the shape. Use this tool before you roll the paper strips. When coiling the pieces, make sure that you don't roll the paper too tightly or else it will flatten the crimped paper and you'll lose the effect altogether.

Quilling, the coiling and shaping of narrow paper strips to create a design, has been around for years - hundreds, in fact. During the Renaissance, nuns and monks would roll gold-gilded paper remnants trimmed during the bookmaking process, and use them to decorate religious objects as an alternative to costly gold filigree.
