Triomf Van Barok - AbeBooks

Amazon Review. Afrikaans author Marlene Van Niekerk lived for a time in Triomf, the white working class suburb of western Johannesburg built on the bulldozed rubble of Sophiatown, once one of black South Africa's cultural heartlands. Whilst gardening she kept digging up its remnants, just like one of the characters in her novel Triomf, which excavates the lives of the impoverished poor white ...

Triomf may be the signal Afrikaans novel of the 1990s . . . A daring, vicious and hilarious flight of imagination" (The Washington Post). This is the story of the four inhabitants of 127 Martha Street in the poor white suburb of Triomf.

Triomf van de Barok (German) Paperback - 1991

Triomf is a disturbing tale that highlights the hypocrisy of Apartheid in South Africa, albeit from a surprising perspective. It is about a poor, white Afrikaans family, who the reader does not really want to be acquainted with, but who will trap you in the same sticky web in which they hold each other.

I think Triomf is a superb book in many ways: the evocative language, the grotesquely fascinating characters, the cabin-fever atmosphere of their dreadful house. I read it willing it to be good. But, and this is a big but, despite being gripped by the first 300 pages, it began to lose me and finishing it became a labour of love.

*"The Swan Whisperer is not an answer to the question of the mystery of writing, but a delineation of the mystery itself—a depiction of the space of 'translation' in which the reader, with greater, or lesser difficulty, interprets what is written—and that is achievement enough.
