What Luther Says About...ABSOLUTION - A Lutheran Layman

One of the most fascinating and helpful resources is What Luther Says by Ewald Plass (though the Missouri Synod Lutheran Church was the mastermind behind this book). The book contains 1700 pages of quotes by Martin Luther arranged topically. This book is a masterful topical arrangement of Luther's opinion on a myriad of subjects: everything from practical matters to in-depth theological issues.

What Luther Says About...ABSOLUTION 1 ABSOLUTION - TERM DEFINED Absolution is nothing else than the preaching and proclaiming of the forgiveness of sins, which Christ here commands us both to preach and to hear. But because it is necessary to preserve such preaching in the church, absolution, too, should be retained. For there is only this difference between the two: While through preaching the Gospel we publish this forgiveness everywhere and tell it to all in general, in absolution we tell ...

Thus this name is commonly applied in Scripture to all messengers of God in heaven and on earth, whether they are the holy angels in heaven or prophets and apostles on earth. . . . But the heavenly spirits in particular are called angels because they are the highest and noblest messengers of God" (What Luther Says, p. 23). Like a herald announcing the arrival of a king, the appearance of a good angel in Scripture is a signal calling all to hear the Word of the Lord and to see God's mighty ...

What Did The Reformers Say About Angels? - Lutheran ...

Martin Luther was a German professor of theology, priest and seminal leader of the Reformation. His positions on Judaism continue to be controversial. These changed dramatically from his early career, where he showed concern for the plight of European Jews to his later years, when embittered by his failure to convert them to Christianity, he became outspokenly antisemitic in his statements and writings. Recent historical studies have focused on Luther's influence on modern antisemitism, with a p
