We Refugees Poem by Benjamin Zephaniah - Poem Hunter
And even young boys must grow beards. I come from a great old forest I think it is now a field And the people I once knew Are not there now. We can all be refugees Nobody is safe, All it takes is a mad leader Or no rain to bring forth food, We can all be refugees We can all be told to go, We can be hated by someone For being someone.

About Refugee Boy. My dearest son, We shall be writing you soon, young man. Be strong, learn more English, and remember to love your neighbors because peace is better than war wherever you live. Your loving father Walk in the shoes of Alem and you will learn what it's like to be a boy without a country. Alem's father is Ethiopian and his mother Eritrean and as long as these two countries are at war, Alem's family is not welcome in either place.

Refugee Boy: Benjamin Zephaniah: Bloomsbury USA Childrens Zephaniah, a London-based performance poet, sends a strong political message in his realistic account of a young refugee's struggles. With both of his parents' homelands at war, 14-year-old Alem is persecuted because of the family's mixed nationality; his Ethiopian father and Eritrean mother decide that their son will be
